

Is there normality across all data?

Data slightly deviates from the overall normality.

